

Library Update: November 2011

November is Jewish Book Month. Technically, it's the 30 days before Chanukah begins. Chanukah is late this year - it starts on Dec. 21st - but that's just Reality. In our minds, November is Jewish Book - and by extension a month to especially celebrate Music and Art. Yeah, Music! Yeah, Art!

Thanks to generous donations, we have several books that are new to us to add to our collection. We're so grateful. My autumn project is to make the cds more accessible. We have all kinds of music on cd: some of it is catalogued, some is just waiting. I've been putting this off as I find it difficult to catalog cds and they're especially hard to shelve. Any suggestions would be welcomed.

We have another issue of our new magazine, "Bitayavon". This issue has a recipe for Pad Thai and some mediteranean dinners like Paella! The article explains that Spanish farmers improvised Paella in the fields for their dinners so it would be perfect for Sukkot - but Paella is always great. The recipe calls for chicken but I like fish Paella just as well.

We need better and more signs in the library. Is there a volunteer in the congregation?
